The Gold and Black a Little Too Fast for the Garnet and Black.

A FAST BASKETBALL GAME

The Play Was Very Exciting at Tin-Time.
Carolina's Hard Luck Story Drags All Through the Game.

A basketball five from Wofford College came out on top last night and carried off a victory by 21 points over Carolina's 13. The score is not a one-sided one for basketball, and during the early eight points, the game was full of exciting moments, and the play was very fast at times. It was unfortunate that one corner of the field was covered with grass. If it were unoccupied, with the resultant play that in that quarter was extremely rough towards the end.

At the end of the first half it seemed that Carolina might win by a point; but the second matched. Wofford had caged four times from the field and had dropped three fouls out of four. On the other hand, Carolina had put the cover on for three field goals and had taken two out of five foul chances. The score was 11 to 8 for Wofford, and Carolina had lost some very close calls at the outset.

The second half was characterized by close playing. Every man for himself, and teamwork was almost entirely lacking. Basketball is an open game and team work is an essential. When the men bunch and leave their respective portions of the field, the game becomes rough and tumble and the spectator loses all enjoyment in it. The teams should work as two wholes against each other, and then the play goes like the deck work and is interesting to watch as the workings of a well-organized machine. When the men bunch, fouls are made, and the play is clogged. It was so to the second half of the Wofford-Carolina game. In this half Wofford got five goals from the field, and out of six foul chances, failed to cage the ball once. Carolina took two field goals and one foul out of five chances. The score was 10 to 6.

HALL OF SCIENCE
NOW ASSURED

Appropriation For New Building
Passed the Senate Last Friday.

OUTLINE OF ARCHITECT'S PLANS

Hard Fight in the Senate on Carolina's Appropriation, But Measure Passed
House By Large Majority.

The bill providing for an appropriation of $30,000 for a new building passed the Senate last Friday night, it having previously passed the House; so this building is now assured. It is understood that this is to be a $40,000 building, the remaining $10,000 to be appropriated at the next session of the Legislature.

This appropriation comes to supply the want for an adequate science building at the University. The present Science Hall is a makeshift at best. In the first place, it was not designed for classrooms, the original purpose of it was for a chapel. The heating arrangements in it are very poor, the classrooms are all badly lighted. In addition, the three departments located in this building are very much crowded, the rooms are small and the laboratories are inadequate.

When this new building is constructed, all of the old Science Hall will be turned into a gymnasium, and furnished with all necessary apparatus.

The new building is to be built especially for the departments of Biology and Chemistry, and is to consist of laboratories and classrooms fitted up with up-to-date paraphernalia for these departments.

The location of the new Science Hall will be on the green, facing Pendleton street and directly opposite the Administration Building which is now nearing completion.

The plans of the University's architect also call for two other buildings along this street, and in line with the new Science Building. It is in Asesculaians Organize.

The Asesculai Society, which is composed of ten future doctors of medicine who are now students of the University, met and organized last Saturday night.

The society has been in existence since early in the year, but organization was delayed until the present time. The officers elected last Saturday were as follows: President, Geo. Benet, '09; vice-president, R. E. Seibels, '09; secretary and treasurer, W. F. King, '09.

MANY PRIZES
YET TO BE WON

Awards are to Be Made Between March and June.

LIST OF THE VARIOUS PRIZES

The Annual Story Prize, the Carolinian Prize, the Gamecock Prize and Many Others Will Be Given.

There are many prizes and medals that may be won by the students of the University of South Carolina, and the session is now well advanced, the great majority of these are still to be awarded.

In the first place the societies each offer a medal for the best debater and the best declaimer among their members. These medals are highly prized, as there are usually a number of contestants for them. These intra-society contests will probably be held within the next six weeks.

The Carolinian staff offers three medals, valued at $10 each, for the best poem, story and essay published in the magazine during the year. The Garnet and Black staff also offers a medal worth $25 for the best sketch or poem or short story published in the annual for the current year. These prizes are offered for the purpose of encouraging the students to write for the college publications. They are all presented to the successful contestants at the celebration of the two societies during Commencement.

The late Philo Sherman Bennett, of New Haven, left a certain sum of money to the University, the interest of which was to be devoted each year to the purchase of a medal given for the best essay on "The Principles of Free Government." This medal is worth about $25 and is one of the prettiest of those open to the students. It is also awarded during Commencement.

In addition to these, The Gamecock management offers a prize of $50 for the best sketch pertaining to college life which may be published in The Gamecock. This is not open to members of the staff and affords an excellent opportunity to earn some pocket money for April Fool's Day.

Last summer when Carolina was looking for a president, Dr. Houston's name was most favored. When he delivers his address next June, he may be sure of a crowded house, for he has a State-wide reputation both as a speaker and a man.
