STUDENTS HEARD
DR. HENRY N. SNYDER

Head of Wofford College Spoke in Chapel Sunday Evening—Address Was a Rare Treat.

Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder, president of Wofford College, delivered a most interesting and instructive address in chapel last Sunday night to a large audience of students from the College for Women, the University, and people from the city.

Dr. Snyder spoke of the college world in which the students now found themselves, impressed it upon his hearers that they are a privileged class. He showed how those who attend college are the select few, and that, as such, it is their duty to train both body and mind and make good in every respect.
The idea of service by the older students and of mutual help among the men on the campus was also stressed, and, by a few illustrations, it was made clear that the students and faculty must work as a unit, if the greatest good is to be accomplished.
Dr. Snyder always has something worth while to tell college men and his talk was a treat to all.

WILSON LEAGUE GROWS STRONGER EACH DAY

Columbia University, Johns Hopkins, Washington and Lee, V. P. I., Trinity, Earlham and Randolph-Macon Are Late Entries.

The Woodrow Wilson League of College Men is growing stronger each day and it is expected that by June every college and university in both the North and South will have organized a club of Wilson men.

In a letter to Broadus Mitchell, president of this club, D. H. Ramsey, vice-president of the Wilson League, stated that every college in Virginia had joined in the movement and that colleges and universities of the Northern States were organizing clubs every week.
The most important clubs that have been organized recently are those of the Columbia University, Washington and Lee, V. P. I., and Trinity. Columbia University has over one thousand students and its club is considered one of the strongest of the clubs. Washington and Lee and V. P. I. have clubs organized of one hundred and fifty men each. Clubs have also been organized at Earlham (Ind.), Johns Hopkins and Randolph-Macon.
The Intercollegiate for February carries a most interesting article on the league and states that the organization will have no little influence in placing the name of Woodrow Wilson before the people. Gov. Wilson himself said recently that this organization was one of the most unique intercollegiate movements ever set on foot.
The officers of the league are endeavoring to get each organization to send delegates to the Democratic convention at Baltimore in June.

GARNET AND BLACK.
The editor-in-chief of the Annual gave notice a few days ago that all material for the Garnet and Black would be sent to the publishers on March 10, but owing to the negligence or unwillingness of some of the students to contribute he has found it advisable to hold it a few days. The staff is short of material this year and is very anxious to receive all contributions at once. Write something and hand it to Mr. Williams, the editor-in-chief, or some other member of the staff. It will be appreciated.
