PROFESSOR RUCKER ADDRESSES Y. M. C. A.

Speaks Interestingly of "The Legal Aspects of Marriage."

Prof. E. Marion Rucker lectured to the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night on "The Legal Aspects of Marriage."

He confined his remarks to the legal side of the question and spoke of the marriage agreement between the parties concerned. "Now how are we to know," he said, "whether the promise was ever made to marry or not? Both parties may hold respectfull position in life and if the question should be brought up and denied by the one or other how can it be proved? How are we to know who is telling the truth? How are we to tell whether the agreement was really made or not?"

"The law says that a man or woman may make any statement except about something they had no right to speak of. The court cannot allow any statement made there begins to change. But if statement is made it must be seen. That is the end. The fact that defendant is married is no cause of defense whatever."

Facts in law along this line show that if a couple are married and afterward become insane it is not a ground for divorce. But if person was insane before marriage there is ground for divorce.

A fraudulent marriage is not legal. If a woman is fooled into marriage it is not legal if she wants to set it aside.

"Marriage," said the speaker, "is a contract in which both parties concerned agree and know what they are doing."

"What is marriage? some may ask. Some think there can be no marriage without white doing."

No intermediate or final examination may be held outside of the stated times without the special permission of the president.

By consent of the instructor, students may be transferred for examination from one section to another of the same grade.

Examinations will begin and end promptly at the stated hours.

No make-up periods are provided during the period of examination.

As an example of how to use the above table if you have a class meeting on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 8:30 your examination will be held on Friday at 9 o' clock.

MERCER IS OPPOSITION FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

What is reported to be a fast and experienced team of basketball players will come from Mercer College for a game with the Carolina five Saturday night. Bleachers have been provided in the gymnasium, and those who attend can watch the game with a great deal more pleasure than formerly.

The Carolina aggregation has been beaten but once this year, and a good game is expected.

Bowling trains and robes, orange blossoms, and other such. All this very nice indeed, but one is just as much married in marriage and with only few to witness it as the white doings mentioned above.

"If Bill Jones and Sam Smith enter into a contract to sell goods, they must live up to contract and abide by it, but it is different in marriage contract. No matter what agreement was made the man must support his wife. Regardless of what she is worth. If she so desires, she can make him support her. But if they are living together she must go with him where he can best earn her support. On the other hand a woman, no matter how much she is worth, can stand by and see her husband buried into the poor-house and a hand will not be raised to make him support her. The law does not require it. A man must support his child but the mother is not required by law to do so.

"South Carolina is the only state in the union that does not have a divorce law. If a man in divorce state wants to rid himself of his wife all he has to do is raise a row and it is an easy matter to get her consent. I believe the divorce law is immoral and that the people of South Carolina will not stand for it may ask. Some think there can be no marriage without white doing."
