Three "C" Men Return—Twenty Candidates Out for Positions

Regular baseball practice opened on the University Field Tuesday afternoon with 20 candidates out for the team. Battery practice has been in progress now for more than a week but Tuesday was the first day of the regular practice. From the appearance Tuesday, it looks as if there will be some sharp contests for positions on the team with the number of candidates increasing daily and that the team finally chosen will be one that will show up well against the best offerings of any southern college.

The team will be built around a nucleus of three of last year's "C" men, Clark, shortstop and captain; Waring, pitcher; and Seaborn, catcher. This will be Clark's and Waring's fourth year of college baseball; Seaborn's third. Others back from last year's squad are: Wolfe, pitcher; Evans, infielder, and Kohn, infielder. He was a regular pitcher on his hometown, Orangeburg, summer baseball team last summer, winning nine out of the ten games he pitched. The new men are showing up unusually well for the first days so that Coach Foster should have little trouble in picking a winning team.

The schedule has not been completed as yet, but a large number of the games will have to be played without of State teams due to the fact that so many South Carolina colleges have discontinued intercollegiate baseball.

Among those who have lately left "the fostering care" of Mrs. Maddox are: Cannady, J. P. Sutherland, H. H. Martin, Sims, Harrington, J. H. Moore. Since the beginning of the
