Harry Davis Talks
To Dramatic Club

Columbia High School Students Given Lecture by Carolina Post-Grad

Harry E. Davis, a graduate student and assistant to the director of the Your Theatre, addressed the Columbia High School Dramatic club at their last meeting, using as a general topic, "Types of Theatre Personalities." He also gave the club, which is quite large, several serious drill on technical stage terms. All persons may be divided into positive and negative characters, as Mr. Davis classified them, and the people who plan to work in the theatre must be most definitely positive about what they want to do and how, or else struggle along and overcrowd out by increasing numbers of positive personalities. To his advice, Mr. Davis included some suggestions for productions and also that "Spoon River Anthology" would be an interesting problem for an individual to work out and characterize at the club meetings.

Mr. Davis, together with Miss Oro Mae Jackson, has just completed a set of scenery for this High School club which the students will put themselves and use in forthcoming productions.
