U. D. C. Offers Essay Award

$1,000 Offered To Student For Best Historical Essay on Virginia

A price of $1,000 is being offered by the University of the District of Columbia to stimulate students of universities and colleges of the United States by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, on an unabridged monograph or essay in the field of Southern history for the year 1923-1924. The title of the essay is "Souls of Southern Women." Applications are invited on or before January 1, 1924. The winner will be notified on January 15, 1924.

FRESHMEN ARE WELL PREPARED

Entering freshmen are well prepared for college work, according to Dr. E. L. Davis, head of the department of English in the University of Virginia. "We find that the majority of these students have a very careful and thorough preparation in their English studies," he said. "This is perhaps the most important preparation that can be made for college work, and we are happy to see that the majority of our freshmen have this preparation."
