Duke Orator Speaks Here

Is College Favorite

Carolina’s Religious Emphasis Week Ends in November

Dr. Henry Craver, who for many years has been a consistent factor in religious services at Duke University, will be one of the sparker’s for Carolina’s Religious Emphasis Week, November 2-7. He will deliver a series of talks on “Youth and Duke,” beginning his stay in Durham, N. C., on November 15.

Dr. Craver has always been a favorite at Duke, according to Dean Russell, “his spiritual message and his capacity to fascinate.” After delivering several addresses at Duke, he was compelled to move from the campus to a large auditorium, where audiences were estimated to number 2,000.

“It is an excellent orator,” declared Dean Russell, “and one of the nation’s best speakers to young people. He speaks language that young people can understand and appreciate. He himself is still a young man and his own participation in college life and college activities gives him a knowledge of the thought and problems of young people that his art are interesting and valuable.”

Dr. Helms Will Speak At Chapel Services

Dr. Clyde Helms, president of Shandon Baptist Church, will speak next Sunday night at 8 o’clock at a vespers service in the University chapel. Dr. Helms plans to talk in line with the subject “Finding God on a College Campus.” His words will be heard by several of the world’s most active students and alumni.

A College Professor Invented This Miracle Pen

From Pens That Suddenly Run Dry

A Wisconsin educator discovered that a certain ink pen that runs dry becomes functional again when it is moistened. The pen is made of a metal body and a hard rubber nib.

The person who used the pen was told by the professor to keep the pen moist when not in use and he would find it would work when he needed to use it.

The pen is sold for 25 cents a dozen and the manufacturer is pleased with the results.

Duke Kappa Sigma

Has Staged Banquet

On Founders Day

Dr. Kilpatrick and Other Alums To Speak At Celebration, October 19

The Alpha Eta chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma, celebrating Founder’s Day, will honor the members with a formal, star-studded banquet, which will be held this evening at 7:15 o’clock at the Friendly Cafeteria.

Jack Sheldonberg, chapter visitor, will speak at the Friday evening, followed by Emery Kistler and several other alumns.

Phi Kappa Sigma was founded at Dartmouth College in 1852, and since that time the officers of the local chapter are James Bryant, president; Robert Raney, vice president; Preston Conns, treasurer; Louis Brown, secretary; and Edward Harter, corresponding secretary.

4 Students Win Musical Awards

Offered Scholarships

Winners Bailed To Appear Before Beneficent Clubs

Miss Genevieve Williams of Ohio and Eugene M. Smith, both outstanding scholars in piano, and Louis Caisey of New Jersey and Mr. Myer Williams of Annapolis were awarded scholarships in music during the last week, according to an announcement made by Professor Morris Matson, head of the Department of Music.

These scholarships offer an annual fee that includes tuition and a continuation of their music, they will appear before several music clubs in various sections of the State.

The contest was held in Flann Hall and Wednesday afternoon, Professor Maurice Mattson, Mrs. Morris Mattson, of the University Department of Music, and President James Palmer, formerly of the music faculty of Westminster College, served as judges.

Felted, according to Dr. Jennings, through the plan of “supplementary clubs,” each responsible for some sort of organized character in the offering. Whether these trials shall be at or out is more a matter of that hereafter, than the nature of the offering.

In the gene of general factors, the separate can hardly cause one another. Every product or individual may then be brilliant or the reverse, depending upon their qualities which have not been eliminated from the game by excellence.
