All-American Honors Again Given Garnet and Black

Babcock Says Most Students To Be In War In Six Months

Women Will Have Even More Important Roles in Defense Employment

Faculty Members Added

Baptist All Others In Members

Only 25 Students Belong To Church, Says Chase

More than half the seniors students at the University of Southern California are expected to go into the armed services by the end of the year, according to a report of the student body announced recently.

The report was made by the Reverend David B. Chase, dean of the college, who said that the university had received 300 letters from soldiers in the past 30 days.

"We estimate that 300 letters a day are being turned in," Chase said. "Our estimate is based on a survey of the student body, which shows that 75 percent of the students are enrolled in the armed forces."