The committee is in a position to offer certain facilities to students applying from this country, and would like to make it clear to Carolina students that these facilities include the provision of forms of applications, of advice and information on problems and requirements, and the forwarding of student papers.

Candidates would write immediately if they wish to apply for admission in 1932, so that their completed papers can be filed here before October 15. The committee will then forward the same to its November meeting. The extreme shortage of qualified students is so urgent that no more must be lost if it is desired to secure the full quota of qualified students.

In conclusion, it must be emphasized that American students are not more numerous (about one out of five are from the first-year college), and the committee feel that there is little room for improvement, that those that have passed the selection should qualify as intelligent and capable students and as representatives of American higher education.

Tabulation Number Women Students

The latest count in the registrar's office shows that the number of students is 145 more Freshmen, as compared with last Fall's 130. This makes a total of 765 women students, while last year there were 739.

The junior and senior classes are relatively small. This is in the effect of the plan in 1926 to meet the twelfth grade system, resulting in a smaller high-school graduating class.

She has taken the position of coed association. It is the first time that Carolina has had a full-time woman student association, a personal representative of Carolina, on the campus.

Miss Campbell spoke to the Cordial Wednesday afternoon, welcoming her to the job and to a good representative of Carolina, that is, to all the men and women on the campus. She explained that she had been in Dean Closs's office before her appointment.
