A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

At Commencement Day exercises, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different discipline come to be marked by academic robes with colors of different designs?" Everybody—but everybody—is asking it. I know I haven't been able to walk ten blocks on campus in knowing with anybody whom I cannot tell the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with colors of different designs, to the confusion of students who, in the midst of the exercise, are asked by a classmate or by a faculty member of different discipline, "What does your robe mean?" This is the question which everybody is asking.

The robe is an academic institution. It is an institution of higher education, and as such it is divided into different academic disciplines. Each academic discipline has its own robe, and each robe is designed to represent the knowledge and skills that students in that discipline have acquired.
