McGovern to visit Capitol

The three-day seminar at Capstone is sponsored by the USBC, USCEC, and the USCEC's South Carolina Bar Association. The seminar covers topics such as the evaluation of the available data base on the Federal and state courts and a discussion of the proposed Federal rules of evidence with existing South Carolina law, according to Ralph C. McCullough, assistant dean of the USC School of Law and executive director of the S.C. Bar Association

Legislators in action

Nation's youngest legislator officially sworn in Thursday

By HARRY HOPKIN Staff Writer

Sherry Shealy, newly elected member of the South Carolina Senate, was officially sworn in yesterday. She was one of 16 ladies to enter the state legislature in the United States Wednesday, the opening day of the South Carolina State Legislature. Sherry Steadman sat in the Senate chambers as a member of the USCovable population, and that of the students who earned their greatest need, although they are in the same state, the emotional problems of adjusting to a predominantly white institution.

McMillan says that increasing numbers of students are seeking his aid and that in two years, he has helped 23 of these students.

"I have a B.A. and B.D. degrees from Benedict College and the H.A. from Purdue University in Indiana in 1967. I worked at Benedict for five years as student personnel services. I also worked with the S.C. Vocational Rehabilitation program in Sumter and Winnsboro.

As a precaution to all treatment, the client gives permission to evaluate all potential patients. The evaluations are composed of interviews and complete treatment along with an extensive diagnostic interview.

Sherry Steadman is also available at this clinic. Based on a 28-year-old female person is helped toward a solution to problems which will help him cope with the society he lives in.

Counseling, both mental and pre-optor, is available to those in need of a better understanding of the social and personal pressures. This service is a joint effort for the University Counseling Center and the USC-connected Counseling Center.

The Psychological Center, under the direction of Herman C. Heilger, serves both the University Counseling Center and the USC-connected Counseling Center and as well as the general public.

Studied by seven doctors and advanced pre-doctoral students in clinical psychology, the clinic operates as an out-patient clinic offering services in child evaluation, adult personality assessment, individual psychotherapy, play therapy, marital and pre-marital counseling, group therapy and family therapy.

Dr. Heilger and his colleagues work in coordination with the Mental Health Center and the school systems. The center also provides a full range of counseling and psychological services from the Hall Institute, Dr. Heilger.
